Parents as Partners in Special Education: Building Bridges Between Home, School, and Community

This conference is designed to empower parents, prekindergarten through 12th grade, to advocate for their child and navigate the Section 504 or special education process to ensure successful outcomes. The information provided is intended to inform parents about:

- How to advocate for their child through active participation in their child's education, to include the Section 504 or IEP process;
- Services and resources available through our state and local community partners and how to access them; and
- A variety of special education related topics, such as reading, sensory processing, self-regulation, Social Security, and Medicaid Waivers.
